A wise man will make tools of what comes to hand.
A wise man's loss is his secret.
A wise man's thoughts walk within him, but a fool's without him.
A woman and a cherry are painted for their own harm.
A woman conceals what she knows not.
A woman is no older than she looks.
A woman is to be from her house three times; when she is christened, married, and buried.
A woman's counsel is not worth much, but he that despises it is no wiser than he should be.
A woman's strength is in her tongue.
A woman that loves to be at the window, is like a bunch of grapes on the highway.
A wooden leg is better than no leg.

A word and a stone let go cannot be called back.
A word before is worth two after.
A word hurts more than a wound.
A word is enough to the wise.
A word spoken is an arrow let fly.
A work ill done must be twice done.
A work well begun is half ended. (Plato.)
A wound is not cured by the unbending of the bow.
A wounded reputation is seldom cured.
A yeoman upon his legs, is higher than a prince upon his knees.
A young prodigal an old mumper.
A young saint, an old devil.
A young trooper should have an old horse.
A young twig is easier twisted than an old tree.
Absence cools moderate passions, but inflames violent ones.
Absence sharpens love, presence strengthens it.
Abundance, like want, ruins many.
Abundance o' law braks nae law.
Abused patience turns to fury.
According to your purse, govern your mouth. (Ital.)
Account not that work slavery that brings in penny savory.
Accusing is proving, where malice and force sit judges.
Accusing the times is but excusing ourselves.
Action is the proper fruit of knowledge.
Actions measured by time, seldom prove bitter by repentance.
Admiration is the daughter of ignorance.
Advantage is a better soldier than rashness.
Adversity flattereth no man.
Adversity is easier borne than prosperity forgot.
Adversity makes wise, though not rich.
Adversity often leads to prosperity.
Advice to all, security for none.
Advise not what is most pleasant, but what is most useful. (Solon.)
Ae hour's cauld will suck out seven years' heat.
Ae ounce o' mither-wit is worth a pound o' clergy.
Affairs, like salt fish, ought to be a good while a soaking.
Affairs that are done by due degrees, are soon ended.
Affinity in hearts is the nearest kindred.

Affirmations are apter to be believed than negations.
Aft counting keeps freends lang thegither.
After a delay comes a stay.
After a dream of a wedding comes a corpse.
After a famine in the stall, comes a famine in the hall.
After a storm comes a calm.
After cheese comes nothing.
After death, the doctor.
After dinner sit awhile; after supper walk a mile.
After meat, comes mustard.
After the greatest danger is the greatest pleasure.
After wit is everybody's wit.
Aft times the cautioner pays the debt.
Against God's wrath no castle is thunder proof.
Age and wedlock bring a man to his night-cap.
Agree, for the law is costly.
Agues come on horseback, but go away on foot.
Ale sellers shou'd na be tale tellers.
Alexander himself was once a crying babe.
Alexander was below a man, when he affected to be a god.
Alike every day makes a clout on Sunday.
All are good maids, but whence come the bad wives?
A' are na maidens that wear bare hair.
All are not friends that speak one fair.
All are not hanged that are condemned.
All are not hunters that blow the horn.
All are not saints that go to church. (Ital.)
All are not thieves that dogs bark at.
All between the cradle and the coffin is uncertain.
All blood is alike ancient.
All cats are alike grey in the night.
All commend patience, but none can endure to suffer.
All complain of want of memory, but none of want of judgment.
All covet, all lose.
A' cracks, a' bears.
All death is sudden to the unprepared.
All doors open to courtesy.
All fame is dangerous: good bringeth envy; bad, shame.
All feet tread not in one shoe.
All fish are not caught with flies.

All flesh is not venison.
All flowers are not in one garland.
All happiness is in the mind.
All human power is but comparative.
All is but lip-wisdom, that wanteth experience.
All is fine that is fit.
All's good in a famine.
All's lost that is poured into a cracked dish.
All is not at hand that helps.
All is not butter that comes from the cow.
All is not gold that glitters.
All is not lost that is in peril.
All is not won that is put in the purse.
All is soon ready in an orderly house.
All's well that ends well.
All lay load on the willing horse.
All meat is not the same in every man's mouth.
All meat is to be eaten, all maids to be wed.
All men can't be first.
All men can't be masters.
All men naturally have some love of truth.
All men row galley way, i.e. every one draweth towards himself.
All men think their enemies ill men.
All promises are either broken or kept.
All rivers do what they can for the sea
All strive to give to the rich man.
All temptations are found either in hope or fear.
All that are black, dig not for coals.
All that are in a bed must not have quiet rest.
All that breed in the mud are not eels.
All that is said in the parlour, should not be heard in the hall.
All that you get you may put in your eye, and see never the worse.
All the craft is in the catching.
All the honesty is in the parting.
All the keys hang not at one man's girdle.
All the months in the year curse a fair Februeer.
All the praise of inward virtue consists in outward action.
All the speed is in the spurs.
All the world will beat the man whom fortune buffets.

All things are difficult before they are easy.
All things are easy that are done willingly.
A' things are gude unsay'd.
A' things are gude untry'd.
All things are not to be granted at all times.
All things come round to him who will but wait.
A' things hae a beginning.
A' things hae an end, an' a pudding has twa.
A' things thrive but thrice.
A' things wyte that na weel fares.
All tongues are not made of the same flesh.
All truth is not to be told at all times.
All unwarrantable delights have an ill farewell.
All vice infatuates and corrupts the judgment.
A' wa'd hae a', a' wa'd forgie.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
All worldly happiness consists in opinion.
Almost and very nigh saves many a lie.
Almost was never hanged.
Alms are the golden key, that opens the gate of heaven.
Alms-giving never made any man poor, nor robbery rich, nor prosperity wise.
Always put the saddle on the right horse.
Always taking out of the meal tub, and never putting in, soon comes to the bottom.
Amangst twenty-four fools no ae wise man.
Ambition plagues her proselytes.

An unbidden guest must bring his stool with him.
An unhappy lad may make a good man.
An unlawful oath is better broke than kept.
An unpeaceable man hath no neighbour.
An upright judge has more regard to justice than to men. (Ital.)
Ane may bind a sack before it be fu'.
Anger and haste hinder good counsel.
Anger begins with folly, and ends with repentance.
Anger dieth quickly with a good man.
Anger is often more hurtful than the injury that caused it.
Anger is short-lived in a good man.
Anger makes a rich man hated, and a poor man scorned.
Anger may glance into the breast of a wise man, but rests only in the bosom of fools.
Anger punishes itself.
Antiquity cannot privilege an error, nor novelty prejudice a truth.
Antiquity is not always a mark of verity.
Apes are never more beasts, than when they wear men's clothes.
Apothecaries would not give pills in sugar unless they were bitter.
Apples, pears, and nuts spoil the voice.
Application makes the ass.
April borrows three days of March, and they are ill.
April showers bring forth May flowers.
April wears a white hat.
Argument seldom convinces any one against his inclination.
Arrogance is the obstruction of wisdom.
Arthur was not but whilst he was.
Art helps nature, and experience art.

Art must be deluded by art.
As a jewel of gold in a hog's snout, so is a fair woman without virtue. (Solomon.)
As a man is friended, so the law is ended.
As a man lives, so shall he die, as a tree falls so shall it lie.
As a vessel is known by the sound, whether it be cracked or not; so men are proved, by their speeches, whether they be wise or foolish. (Demosthenes.)

As you sow you shall reap.
As your wedding ring wears, you'll wear off your cares.
Asses die, and wolves bury them.
Asses that bray most, eat least.
Ask a kite for a feather, and she'll say, she has but just enough to fly with.
Ask but enough, and you may lower the price as you list.
Ask thy purse what thou shouldest buy.
At a great bargain make a pause.
At a round table the herald's useless.
At open doors dogs come in.
At St. Mathee shut up the bee.
At the door of the fold, words; within the fold, an account.
At the end of the game you'll see who's the winner.
At the end of the work, you may judge of the workman.
At the first hand buy, at the third let lie.
At the gate where suspicion enters, love goes out.
Auld sin, new shame.
Auld sparrows are ill to tame.
Auld springs gie nae price.
Avarice increases with wealth. (Ital.)
Away goes the devil when he finds the door shut against him.

B.

Bacchus hath drowned more men than Neptune.
Bachelor's wives and maid's children are well taught.
Backbiting oftener proceeds from pride than malice.
Bad customs are better broke than kept up.
Bad excuses are worse than none.
Bad is a bad servant, but 'tis worse being without him.
Bad luck often brings good luck.
Bad priests bring the devil into the church.
Bad words find bad acceptance.

Bannocks are better nor nae kind o' bread.
Barefooted men must not go among thorns.
Bare gentry, braggand beggars.

Be just to all but trust not all.
Be lang sick, that ye may be soon hale.
Be not a baker if your head be of butter.
Be not too hasty to outbid another.
Be not too brief in conversation, lest you be not understood; nor too diffuse, lest you be troublesome. (Protagoras.)
Be not ungrateful to your old friend.
Be old betimes, that thou mayst long be so.
Be patient, and you shall have patient children.
Be silent, or speak something worth hearing.
Be slow in choosing, but slower in changing.
Be slow of giving advice, ready to do a service.
Be slow to promise, quick to perform.
Be sure before you marry, of a house wherein to tarry. (Span. Ital.)
Be sure of hay till the end of May.
Be the day never so long, at length cometh evensong.

Be the same thing that ye wa'd be ca'd.
Bear, and blame not what you cannot change. (Publius Syrus.)
Bear and forbear is good philosophy.
Bear wealth, poverty will bear itself.
Bear with evil, and expect good.
Beauties without fortunes have sweethearts plenty, but husbands none at all.
Beauty draws more than oxen.
Beauty is but skin deep.
Beauty is no inheritance.
Beauty is the subject of a blemish.
Beauty may have fair leaves, yet bitter fruit.
Beauty provoketh thieves sooner than gold.
Beauty will buy no beef.
Beauty without bounty avails nought.
Beauty without virtue is a curse.
Bees that have honey in their mouths have stings in their tails.
Before you make a friend, eat a peck of salt with him. (Scotch.)
Beggars breed, and rich men feed.
Beggars can never be bankrupts.
Beggars fear no rebellion.
Beggars mounted run their horses to death.
Beggars must not be choosers.
Begging a courtesy is selling liberty.
Being on the sea, sail, being on the land, settle.
Believe only half of what you hear of a man's wealth and goodness.
Believe well, and have well.

Better be the head of the yeomanry, than the tail of the gentry.
Better be up to the ankles than over head and ears.
Better be unmannerly than troublesome.
Better bid the cooks nor the mediciners.
Better bow than break.
Better break your word than do worse in keeping it.
Better buy than borrow.
Better come at the latter end of a feast than the beginning of a fray.
Better cut the shoe than pinch the foot.
Better die a beggar than live a beggar.
Better direct well than work hard.
Better do it, than wish it done.
Better dwell with a dragon than with a wicked woman
Better eat grey bread in your youth than in your age. (Scotch.)
Better face a danger once than be always in fear.
Better fare hard with good men than feast with bad.
Better fill a glutton's belly than his eye.
Better give a shilling than lend half a crown.
Better give the wool than the whole sheep.
Better go away longing than loathing.
Better go to bed supperless than rise in debt.
Better go to heaven in rags than to hell in embroidery.
Better God than gold.
Better good afar off than ill at hand.
Better gude sale nor gude ale.
Better half a loaf than no bread.
Better half an egg than an empty shell.
Better hand loose than in an ill tethering.
Better haud by a hair than draw wi' a tether.
Better have an old man to humour than a young rake to break your heart.
Better have it than hear of it.
Better have one plough going than two cradles.
Better hazard once than be always in fear.

Better hold out nor put out.
Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith. (Solomon.)
Better keep now than seek anon.
Better late ripe and bear, than early blossom and blast.
Better late than never.
Better late thrive, than never do well. (Scotch.)
Better learn by your neeighbour's skaith than by your ain.
Better leave than lack.
Better live in a poor hovel than be buried in a rich sepulchre.
Better live within compass than have large comings in.
Better lose a jest than a friend.
Better lose a supper than have a hundred physicians. (Span.)
Better master one than engage with ten.
Better ne'er hae begun nor ne'er end it.
Better no ring than a ring of a rush.
Better one braggadocio than two fighters.
Better one house fill'd than two spill'd.
Better one's house be too little one day than too big all the year after.
Better one word in time than two afterwards.
Better pass a danger once, than be always in fear.
Better ride an ass that carried us than a horse that throws us.
Better saught wi' little aught nor care wi' mony a cow.
Better say nothing than nothing to the purpose.
Better see a clout, than a hole out.
Better sell than live poorly.
Better shelter under an old hedge, than a young furzebush.
Better sit idle than work for nought.
Better sit still nor rise an' get a fa'.
Better skaith sav'd than mends made.
Better some of a pudding than none of a pie.
Better spare at the brim than at the bottom.
Better spare to have of thine own than ask others.
Better spared than ill spent.
Better strive with an ill ass than carry the wood one's self.
Better suffer a great evil than do a little one.
Better suffer ill than do ill.
Better ten guilty escape than one innocent man suffer

Better the foot slip than the tongue.
Better the head of the yeoman than the tail of the gentry.
Better the ill ken'd than the gude unken'd.
Better the last smile than the first laughter.
Better to be beaten than be in bad company.
Better to be alone than in bad company.
Better to be idle than not well occupied.
Better to do well late than never.
Better to have than to wish.
Better to live well than long.
Better to rule than be ruled by the rout.
Better to say here it is than here it was.
Better two drones be preserved than one good bee perish.
Better two losses than one sorrow.
Better unborn than unbred.
Better untaught than ill taught.
Better walk leisurely than lie abroad all night.
Better wear out shoes than sheets.
Better woo o'er midden nor o'er moss.
Between promising and performing a man may marry his daughter.
Between two stools the breech cometh to the ground.
Beware of a silent dog and still water.
Beware of breed; i.e. an ill breed.
Beware of enemies reconciled, and meat twice boiled. (Span.)
Beware of Had I wist.
Beware of him who regards not his reputation.
Beware of him whom God hath marked.
Beware of little expense.
Beware of no man more than thyself.
Beware of the forepart of a woman, the hind part of a mule, and all sides of a priest.
Beware of the geese when the fox preaches.
Beware of the stone thou stumbledst at before.
Beware of vinegar made of sweet wine. (Italian.)
Bind fast, find fast.
Bind so as you may unbind.
Birchen twigs break no ribs.
Birds are entangled by their feet, and men by their tongues.
Birds of a feather flock together.

Birds pay equal honours to all men.
Birth is much, but breeding is more.
Biting and scratching gets the cat with kitten.
Bitter pills may have wholesome effects.
Blaw the wind never so fast, it will lower at last.
Black plums may eat as sweet as white.
Black will take no other hue.
Blessed is the peace-maker, not the conqueror.
Blessings are not valued till they are gone.
Blind men must not run.
Blind men should not judge of colours.
Blind men's wives need no paint.
Blood's thicker than water.
Bloody and deceitful men dig their own graves.
Blots are no blots till hit.
Blow first, and sip afterwards.
Blow not against the hurricane.
Blow thine own pottage, and not mine.
Blushing is virtue's colour.
Bodily labour earns not much.
Boil stones in butter, and you may sip the broth.
Boldness in business is the first, second, and third thing.
Bold resolution is the favourite of Providence.
Bonny siller is soon spent.
Borrowed garments never sit well.
Borrow not too much upon time to come.
Both anger and haste hinder good counsel.
Both folly and wisdom come upon us with years.
Bought friends are not friends in deed.
Bought wit is best, but may cost too much.
Bounty being free itself, thinks all others so.
Bourd na wi' bawty, fear lest he bite ye.
Brabbling curs never want sore ears.
Brag's a good dog, but he hath lost his tail.
Brag's a good dog, but Holdfast is a better.
Brave actions never want a trumpet.
Bread at pleasure, drink by measure. (Fr.)
Bread for Borrough men.
Bread of a day, ale of a month, and wine of a year.
Bread's house skaild never.
Brevity is a great praise of eloquence. (Cicero.)

Brevity is the soul of wit.
Bribes throw dust into cunning men's eyes.
Bribes will enter without knocking.
Bridges were made for wise men to walk over, and fools to ride under.
Bring a cow to the ha' an' she'll rin to the byre.
Bring not a bagpipe to a man in trouble.
Bring your line to the wall, not the wall to your line.
Broken sacks will hold no corn.
Buffoonery and scurrility are the corruption of wit, as knavery is of wisdom.
Building and the marrying of children are great wasters.
Building is a sweet impoverishing.
Burn not your house to fright away the mice.
Business and action strengthen the brain, but too much study weakens it.
Business is the salt of life.
Business makes a man as well as tries him.
Business may be troublesome, but idleness is pernicious.
Business neglected is business lost.
Busy-bodies never want a bad day.
Busy folks are always meddling.
Busy will have bands.
Butter is gold in the morning, silver at noon, and lead at night.
Butter's once a year in the cow's horn.
Buy and sell, and live by the loss.
Buy at a market, but sell at home.
Buyers want an hundred eyes, sellers none.
Buying a thing too dear is no bounty.
Buying and selling is but winning and losing.
By art and deceit men live half a year; and by deceit and art the other half.
By doing nothing we learn to do ill.
By ignorance we mistake, and by mistakes we learn.
By others' faults wise men correct their own.
By requiting one friend we invite many.
By the husk you may guess at the nut.
By Tre, Pol, and Pen, you shall know the Cornish men.
By wisdom peace, by peace plenty.
Bye and by is easily said.

C.

Cadgers are ay cracking o' crooksadles.
Calamity is the touchstone of a brave mind.
Call a spade a spade.
Call no man happy till he dies.
Call not a surgeon before you are wounded.
Call your husband cuckold in jest, and he'll never suspect you.
Calm weather in June sets corn in tune.
Calumny and conjecture may injure innocency itself.
Can a jackanapes be merry when a clog is at his heels?
Can a mill go with the water that's past?
Can a mouse fall in love with a cat?
Can't I be your friend, but I must be your fool too?
Canterbury's the higher rack, but Winchester's the better manger.
Capons were at first but chickens.
Care and diligence bring luck.
Care not, and that will prevent horns.
Care will kill a cat; yet there's no living without it.
Care's no cure.
Careless men let their end steal upon them unawares and unprovided.
Careless shepherds make many a feast for the wolf.
Carrion kites will never make good hawks.
Carry your knife even between the paring and the apple.
Cast a bone in the de'il's teeth and it will save you.
Cast no dirt into the well that gives you water.
Cast not a clout till May be out.
Cast not out thy foul water till thou hast clean.
Cast not the helve after the hatchet.
Cast not thy cradle over thy head.
Cast your staff into the air, and it will fall upon its root.
Catch not at the shadow, and lose the substance.
Catch that catch may.
Catch the bear before you sell his skin.
Cats eat what hussies spare.
Cats hide their claws.
Cauld cools the luve that kindles o'er hat.
Cause not thine own dog to bite thee.

Censure and scandal are not the same.
Censure's the tax a man pays the public for being eminent.
Cent. per cent. do we pay for every vicious pleasure.
Chains of gold are stronger than chains of iron.
Chair-folks are never paid enough.
Chalk is na sheers.
Chance is a dicer.
Change of fortune is the lot of life.
Change of pasture makes fat calves.
Change of weather is the discourse of fools.
Change of women makes bald knaves.
Changing of words is the lighting of hearts.
Charge your freend ere you hae need.
Charity and pride have different aims, yet both feed the poor.
Charity begins at home, but should not end there.
Charity excuseth not cheating.
Charity is the scope of all God's commands.
Charity will rather wipe out the score than inflame the reckoning.
Charon waits for all.
Cheating play never thrives.
Cheat me in the price, but not in the goods.
Cheese, it is a peevish elf, it digests all things but itself.
Chickens now-a-days cram the cock.
Children and chicken must ever be picking.
Children and fools have merry lives.
Children and fools tell truth.
Children are certain cares, but uncertain comforts.
Children are poor men's riches.
Children have wide ears and long tongues.
Children increase the cares of life, but mitigate the remembrance of death.
Children pick up words as pigeons peas, and utter them again as God shall please.
Children suck the mother when they are young, and the father when grown up.
Children, when little, make parents fools; when great, mad.
Choler hates a counsellor.
Choler is the only unruly passion that justifies itself.
Choose a wife rather by your ear than your eye.

Choose rather to be the tail of lions than the head of foxes.
Christmas comes but once a year.
Church-work goes on slowly.
City gates stand open to the bad as well as the good.
Civil carriage is the best sign of affection to a woman.
Claw me, and I'll claw thee.
Clean hands want no washball.
Cleaning a blot with blotted fingers maketh a greater.
Clear and round dealing is the honour of man's nature.
Clear moon, frost soon.
Climb not too high lest the fall be the greater.
Close sits my shirt, but closer my skin.
Clouds, that the sun builds up, darken him.
Cloudy mornings may turn to clear evenings.
Clowns are best in their own company, but gentlemen are best every where.
Cobblers and tinkers are the best ale-drinkers.
Cold broth hot again, that lov'd I never; old love renew'd again, that lov'd I ever.
Cold after eating is a sign of long life.
Cold of complexion, good of condition.
Cold weather and knaves come out of the North.
Come and welcome; go by, and no quarrel.
Come, but come stooping.
Come it ear', come it late, in May comes the cowquake.
Come na to the counsel unca'd.
Come uncalled sit unserved.
Comes to my hand like the bow o' a pint stoup.
Coming events cast their shadows before them.
Command your man and do it yourself.
Command your wealth, else that will command you.
Commend a wedded life, but keep thyself a bachelor.
Commend not your wife, wine, nor house.
Common fame, a cunning friar, are but both a common liar.
Common fame hath a blister on its tongue.
Common fame is seldom to blame.
Common sense is the growth of all countries.
Commonly he is not stricken again who laughs when he strikes.
Company in misery makes it light.

Comparison, more than reality, makes men happy or wretched.
Comparisons are odious.
Comparisons run not upon all fours.
Compliments cost nothing, yet many pay dear for them.
Concealed goodness is a sort of vice.
Concealed grudges are gangrenes in friendship.
Conceited goods are quickly spent.
Confess and be hanged.
Confess debt, and beg days.
Confession of a fault makes half amends.
Confession without repentance, friends without faith, prayer without sincerity, are mere loss. (Ital.)
Confidence goeth farther in company than good sense.
Confidence is the companion of success.
Confine your tongue, lest it confine you.
Conform to common custom, and not to common folly.
Congruity is the mother of love.
Conscience cannot be compelled.
Conscience is the chamber of justice.
Consider not pleasures as they come, but as they go.
Consideration gets as many victories as rashness loses.
Consideration is half conversion.
Consideration is the parent of wisdom.
Constant complaints never get pity.
Constant dropping wears the stone.
Constant occupation prevents temptation. (Ital.)
Consult with your pillow.
Contempt is the sharpest reproof.
Contempt is usually worse borne than real injuries.
Contempt will cause spite to drink of her own poison.
Contempt will sooner kill an injury than revenge.
Contend not about a goat's beard.
Content is more than a kingdom.
Content is the philosopher's stone, that turns all it touches into gold.
Content lodges oftener in cottages than palaces.
Continual cheerfulness is a sign of wisdom.
Contradiction should awaken attention, not passion.
Conversation teaches more than meditation.
Cooks are not to be taught in their own kitchen.

Cool words scald not the tongue.
Corn in good years is hay; in ill years straw is corn.
Corn is cleansed with the wind, and the soul with chastening.
Corn is not to be gather'd in the blade, but the ear.
Correction should not respect what is past so much as what is to come.
Corruption of the best becomes the worst.
Counsel is no command.
Counsel is to be given by the wise, the remedy by the rich.
Counsel must be followed, not praised.
Counsel over cups is crazy.
Count not your chickens before they be hatch'd.
Courage mounteth with occasion.
Courage ought to have eyes as well as arms.
Courage without fortune destroys a man.
Courtesie is cumbersome to them that ken it not.
Courtesy is the inseparable companion of virtue.
Courtesy on one side can never last long.
Courting and wooing, brings dallying and doing.
Courts keep no almanacks.
Cover your head by day as much as you will, by night as much as you can.
Cover yourself with honey, and the flies will have at you.
Covet nothing over much.
Covetous men are condemned to dig in the mines for they know not who.
Covetous men are neither fed, clothed, nor respected.
Covetous men live drudges to die wretches.
Covetous men's chests are rich, not they.
Covetousness, as well as prodigality, brings a man to a morsel of bread.
Covetousness brings nothing home.
Covetousness is always filling a bottomless vessel.
Covetousness often starves other vices.
Cowards are cruel.
Cowards run the greatest danger of any men in a battle.
Cowardice is afraid to be known or seen.
Craft borders upon knavery; wisdom neither uses nor wants it.
Craft counting all things brings nothing home.
Craft must have clothes, but truth loves to go naked.

Crafty evasions save not veracity.
Crafty men deal in generals.
Credit is better than ill won gear.
Credit keeps the crown o' the causeway.
Credit lost is a Venice-glass broken, which cannot be solder'd.
Creditors have better memories than debtors.
Credulity thinks others short sighted.
Crimes may be secret, yet not secure.
Criminals are punished that others may be amended. (Ital.)
Critics are like brushers of other men's clothes.
Crooked by nature, is never made straight by education
Crooked logs make straight fires.
Crosses are ladders to heaven.
Crows are never the whiter for washing themselves.
Crows bewail the dead sheep, and then eat them.
Cruelty is a tyrant that is always attended with fear
Cruelty is the first attribute of the devil.
Cry you mercy killed my cat.
Cuckolds themselves are the very last that know it.
Cunning craft is but the ape of wisdom.
Cunning is no burden.
Cure your sore eyes only with your elbow.
Curses are like young chickens, and still come home to roost.
Curs'd cows have short horns.
Custom in infancy becomes nature in old age.
Custom is a second nature.
Custom is the guide of the ignorant.
Custom is the plague of wise men, and the idol of fools.
Custom makes all things easy.
Custom without reason is but an ancient error.
Cut your coat according to your cloth.
Cutting out well is better than sewing up well.

D.

Daffing does naething.
Damming an' laving is gude sure fishing.
Danger and delight grow on one stock.
Danger is next neighbour to security.
Danger past, God is forgotten.

Dangers are overcome by dangers.
Daughters and dead fish are no keeping wares.
Daws love one another's prattle.
Daylight will peep through a sma' hole.
Dead folks can't bite.
Dead men tell no tales.
Dead mice feel no cold.
Deaf men go away with the injury.
Death an' marriage mak term-day.
Death and the grave make no distinction of persons.
Death defies the doctor.
Death devours lambs as well as sheep.
Death hath nothing terrible in it, but what life hath made so.
Death is the grand leveller.
Death keeps no calendar.
Death rather frees us from ills than robs us of our goods.
Death's day is doom's day.
Debt is an evil conscience.
Debt is the worst poverty.
Deceit is in haste, but honesty can wait a fair leisure.
Deceiving of a deceiver is no knavery.
Deeds are fruits, words are leaves.
Deeds are males, and words are but females.
Deep lies the heart's language.
Deep rivers move in silence, shallow brooks are noisy.
Defaming or slandering others is the greatest of all sins.
Defer not till to-morrow what may be done to-day.
Defiance provokes an enemy.
Delays increase desires, and sometimes extinguish them.
Deliberate slowly, execute promptly.
Deliberating is not delaying.
Deliver your words not by number but by weight.
Denials make little faults great.
Denying a fault doubles it.
Dependence is a poor trade.
Desert and rewards go not often together.
Deserve success, and you shall command it.
Desire of glory is the last garment that even wise men put off.
Desires are nourished by delays.
Despair gives courage to a coward.
Despair hath ruined some; but presumption multitudes.

Desperate cuts must have desperate cures.
Destiny leads the willing, but drags the unwilling.
Detraction is a weed that grows only on dunghills.
Detractors are their own foes, and the world's enemies.
Dexterity comes by experience.
Diamonds cut diamonds.
Diet cures more than the lancet.
Different sores must have different salves.
Difficulty makes desire.
Difficulties are opportunities.
Difficulties give way to diligence.
Diffidence is the right eye of prudence.
Dignities and honours set off merit, as good dress does good figures.
Diligence is the mother of good fortune.
Ding down the nests, and the rooks will flee away. (Scotch.)
Dirt is dirtiest upon the fairest spots.
Dirty troughs will serve dirty sows.
Discontents arise from our desires oftener than from our wants.
Discreet stops make speedy journeys.
Discretion in speech is more than eloquence.
Diseases are the tax on ill pleasures.
Disputations leave truth in the middle, and party at both ends.
Dissembled sin is double wickedness.
Dissemblers oftener deceive themselves than others.
Distrust is the mother of safety, but must keep out of sight.
Do all you can to be good, and you'll be so.
Do as little as you can to repent of.
Do as most men do, and men will speak well of thee.
Do as the friar saith, not as he doeth.
Do as the maids do, say no, and take it.
Do as you're bidden, and you'll never bear blame.
Do as you would be done by.
Do business, but be not a slave to it.
Do evil, and look for like.
Do good, and then do it again.
Do good, if you expect to receive it.
Do it well, that thou may'st not do it twice.

Do not all you can; spend not all you have; believe not all you hear; and tell not all you know.
Do not close a letter without reading it, nor drink water without seeing it. (Span.)
Do not dwell in a city, where a horse does not neigh, nor a dog bark.
Do not dwell in a city whose governor is a physician.
Do not halloo till you are out of the wood.
Do not look upon the vessel, but upon that which it contains.
Do not make fish of one and flesh of another.
Do not speak of secret matters in a field that is full of little hills.
Do not spur a free horse.
Do nothing by halves.
Do the likeliest, and hope the best.
Do weel, an' doubt nae man; do ill, an' doubt a' men.
Do weel, an' dread nae shame.
Do well, and have well.
Do what thou ought, let come what may.
Doctors make the worst patients.
Dog will not eat dog.
Dogs bark as they are bred.
Dogs begin in jest and end in earnest.
Dogs gnaw bones because they cannot swallow them.
Dogs ought to bark before they bite.
Dogs that bark at a distance never bite.
Dogs that hunt foulest scent the most faults.
Dogs that put up many hares, kill none.
Dogs wag their tails not so much to you as your bread.
Doing nothing is doing ill.
Don't bite off more than you can chew.
Don't buy a pig in a poke.
Don't cry herrings till they are in the net.
Don't cry out till you are out of the bush.
Don't measure other people's corn by your own bushel.
Don't prophesy unless you know.
Draw not your bow till your arrow is fixed.
Drawn wells are seldom dry.
Drawn wells have sweetest water.
Dree out the inch when ye hae thol'd the span.
Drift is as bad as unthrift.

Drink and drought come not always together.
Drink little, that ye may drink lang.
Drink wine, and have the gout; drink none, and have it too.
Drink wine in winter for cold, and in summer for heat.
Drinking kindness is drunken friendship.
Drinking water neither makes a man sick, nor in debt, nor his wife a widow.
Drive not a second nail till the first be clinched.
Drive not too many ploughs at once; some will make foul work.
Drive the nail that will go.
Drive thy business; let not that drive thee.
Drought never bred dearth in England.
Drowning men will catch at a rush.
Drown not thyself to save a drowning man.
Drumming is not the way to catch a hare.
Drunken folks seldom take harm.
Drunkenness is a pair of spectacles to see the devil and all his works.
Drunkenness turns a man out of himself, and leaves a beast in his room.
Dry August and warm, doth harvest no harm.
Dry bread at home is better than roast meat abroad.
Dry bread is better with love than a fat capon with fear.
Dry over head, happy.
Dumb folks get no lands.
Dummie canna lie.
Dying is as natural as living.

E.

Each bird loves to hear himself sing.
Each cross hath its inscription.
Early master, lang knave.
Early ripe, early rotten.
Early sow, early mow.
Early to bed, early to rise, make a man healthy, wealthy and wise.
Earth is the best shelter.
East or west, home is best.
Easy to keep the castle that was never besieged. (Scotch.

Eat a bit before you drink.
Eat a peck of salt with a man before you trust him.
Eat an' drink measurely, an' defy the mediciners.
Eat, and welcome; fast, and heartily welcome.
Eat at pleasure, drink by measure.
Eat little at dinner, less at supper, sleep aloft, and you will sleep oft. (Span.)
Eat peas with the king, and cherries with the beggar.
Eat to live, but do not live to eat.
Eat-well is drink-well's brother.
Eaten bread is forgotten.
Eaten meat is gude to pay.
Eating an' drinking want but a beginnin'.
Eating and drinking take away one's stomach.
Education begins a gentleman, conversation completes him.
Education polishes good natures, and correcteth bad ones.
Either live or die wi' honour.
Either win the horse or lose the saddle.
Empty hands allure no hawks.
Empty vessels give the greatest sound.
Emulation layeth up a grudge.
England's the paradise of women, the hell of horses, and the purgatory of servants.
Enjoy your little while the fool seeks for more. (Span.)
Enough's as good as a feast, to one that's not a beast.
Enough is a feast, too much a vanity.
Enquire not what is in another's pot.
Envy and covetousness are never satisfied.
Envy never yet enriched any man.
Envy shoots at others, and wounds herself.
Error is always in haste.
Error, though blind herself, sometimes bringeth forth children that can see.
Errors, in the first concoction, are hardly mended in the second.
Eternity has no grey hairs.
Even a child may beat a man that's bound.
Even a fly hath its spleen.
Even a worm will turn.
Even an ass will not fall twice in the same quick-sand.
Even an emmet may seek revenge.

Even covetous men have sometimes their intervals of generosity.
Even doubtful accusations leave a stain behind them.
Even fools sometimes speak to the purpose.
Even ill luck itself is good for something in a wise man's hand.
Even reckoning keeps long friends.
Even sugar itself may spoil a good dish.
Even too much praise is a burden.
Evening oats are good morning fodder.
Ever drunk, ever dry.
Ever spare, ever bare.
Every age confutes old errors, and begets new.
Every ass loves to hear himself bray.
Every ass thinks himself worthy to stand with the king's horses.
Every bean hath its black.
Every bird is known by its feathers.
Every bird likes its own nest the best.
Every bird must hatch its own eggs.
Every blade of grass has its own drop of dew.
Every block will not make a Mercury.
Every body's business is nobody's business.
Every cook praises his own broth.
Every couple is not a pair.
Every cross hath its inscription.
Every day brings a new light.
Every day hath its night, every weal its woe.
Every dog hath its day, and every man his hour.
Every dog is a lion at home.
Every dog is valiant at his own door.
Every fool can find faults that a great many wise men can't remedy.
Every gap hath its bush.
Every good scholar is not a good schoolmaster.
Every heart hath its own ache.
Every herring must hang by its own gill.
Every horse thinks his own pack heaviest.
Every hour out of bed after midnight is a nail in your coffin.
Every light has its shadow.

Every light is not the sun.
Every man a little beyond himself is a fool.
Every man as his business lies.
Every man doth his own business best.
Every man hath his hobby horse.
Every man hath a fool in his sleeve.
Every man hath his lot.
Every man hath his own planet.
Every man hath his weak side.
Every man in his way.
Every man is a fool or a physician at forty.
Every man is best known to himself.
Every man is not born with a silver spoon in his mouth.
Every man is the architect of his own fortune.
Every man is the son of his own works.
Every man kens best where his own shoe pinches. (Scotch.)
Every man loves justice at another man's house; nobody cares for it at his own.
Every man must eat a peck of dirt before he dies.
Every man's neighbour is his looking-glass.
Every man's nose will not make a shoeing-horn.
Every man's tale is gude till anither's be tauld.
Every man thinks his own geese swans.
Every man wears his belt his ain gate.
Every man will shoot at the enemy, but few will fetch the shafts.
Every man wishes the water to his ain mill.
Every may-be hath a may-be not.
Every monster hath its multitudes.
Every mote doth not blind a man.
Every one can keep house better than her mother till she trieth.
Every one can tame a shrew but he that hath her.
Every one hath a penny for a new ale-house.
Every one is glad to see a knave caught in his own trap.
Every one is kin to the rich man.
Every one puts his faults on the times.
Every one should sweep before his own door.
Every one thinks himself able to advise another.
Every one's faults are not written on their foreheads.

Every path hath a puddle.
Every pea hath its vease, and a bean fifteen.
Every penny that's saved is not gotten.
Every plummet is not for every sound.
Every potter praises his own pot, and more if it be broken.
Every reed will not make a pipe.
Every scale hath its counterpoise.
Every scrap of a wise man's time is worth saving.
Every shoe fits not every foot.
Every sin carries its own punishment.
Every slip is not a fall.
Every sparrow to its ear of wheat.
Every thing comes to him who waits.
Every thing hath an end, and a pudding hath two.
Every thing hath its time, and that time must be watched.
Every thing is good in its season.

Hypocritical piety is double iniquity.

I.

I am a fool, I love anything that is good.
I cannot be at York and London at the same time.
I cannot run and sit still at the same time.
I cannot sell the cow and have the milk. (Scotch.)
I cannot spin and weave at the same time.
I can't be your friend and your flatterer too.
I had rather my cake burn, than you should turn it.
I know no difference between buried treasure and concealed knowledge. (Ital.)
I know of nobody that has a mind to die this year.
I live, and lords do no more.
I love my friends well, but myself better. (Fr.)
I was well, would be better, took physic, and died. (On a monument.)
I wept when I was born, and every day shews why.
I will never keep a dog to bite me.
I will not buy a pig in a poke.
I will not change a cottage in possession, for a kingdom in reversion.
I will not dance to every fool's pipe.
I will not keep a dog, and bark myself.
I will not pull the thorn out of your foot, to put it into my own.
I wot well how the world wags, he is most loved that hath most bags.
I would have the fruit, not the basket.
I'll not go before my mare to the market.
Idle brains are the devil's workhouses.
Idle folks have the least leisure.
Idle folks have the most labour.

It is not the burden, but the over-burden, that kills the beast. (Span.)
It is not the cowl that makes the friar.
It is not the gay coat makes the gentleman.
It is not want, but abundance, that makes avarice.

It is one thing to speak much, and another to speak pertinently.
It is past joking when the head's aff.
It is possible for a ram to kill a butcher.
It is possible to sin against charity, when we do not against truth.
It is pride, not nature, that craves much.
It is right to put everything to its proper use. (Gaelic.)
It is safer to commend the dead than the living.
It is safer to hear and take counsel than to give it.
It is self-conceit that makes opinion obstinate.
It is sooner said than done.
It is the bridle and spur that make a good horse.
It is the clerk that makes the justice.
It is the ordinary way of the world, to keep folly at the helm, and wisdom under the hatches.
It is the property of fools to be always judging.
It is thou must honour the place, not the place thee.
It is time enough to cry oh! when you are hurt.
It is time to set when the oven comes to the dough.
It is very seldom that a great talker hath either discretion or good manners.
It is weel said, but wha will bell the cat?
It is weel that our fau'ts are na written on our face.
It is weel war'd that wasters want.
It is well to be off with the old love before you are on with the new.
It is wise not to seek a secret, and honest not to reveal it.
It is wiser to run away when there's no remedy, than to stay and die in the field foolishly.
It is wit to pick a lock, and steal a horse, but wisdom to let it alone.
It is working that makes a workman.
It is worse to do, than to revenge an injury.
It matters not what religion an ill man is of.
It must be a wily mouse that can breed in a cat's ear.
It never rains but it pours.
It ought to be a good tale that is twice told.
It shall be done when the king cometh to Wigan.
It signifies nothing to play well if you lose.
It takes two to make a quarrel.

It that lies na i' your gate braks na your shins.
It were better to hear the lark sing, than the mouse cheep.
It will be all the same a hundred years hence.
It will be fair weather when the shrews have dined.
It would make a man scratch where it doth not itch, to see a man live poor to die rich.
It would vex a dog to see a pudding creep.
It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.
It's better to be a cold than a cuckold.
It's dogged as does it.
It's good to have company in trouble.
It's hard to split the hair, that nothing is wanted and nothing to spare.
It's merry in the hall when beards wag all.
It's no use crying over spilt milk.
It's not good to wake a sleeping lion.
It's not how long, but how well we live.
It's the thunder that frights, but the lightning that smites.
Itch and ease, can no man please.
Itch is more intolerable than smart.

J.

Jack of all trades is of no trade.
Jack-of-all-trades, and master of none.
Jack Sprat he loved no fat, and his wife she lov'd no lean, and so betwixt them both they lick'd the platters clean.
Jack would be a gentleman, if he could but speak French.
Janivcer freezes the pot by the fire.
January commits the fault, and May bears the blame.
Jeerers must be content to taste of their own broth.
Jesters do oft prove prophets.
Jesting lies bring serious sorrows.
Jest with an ass, and he will flap you in the face with his tail.
Jests are seldom good the first time, but the second distasteful.
Jests, like sweetmeats, have often sour sauce.
Job was not so miserable in his sufferings, as happy in his patience.

Jocular slanders often prove serious injuries.
Joke, an' let the jaw gae o'er.
Joke at leisure, ye kenna wha may jybe yoursel.
Joy surfeited turns to sorrow.
Judge not of a ship as she lieth on the stocks.
Judge not of men or things at first sight.

K.

Ka me, and I'll ka thee.
Keep a thing seven years and you will find a use for it. (Gaelic.)
Keep aloof from quarrels; be neither a witness nor a party.
Keep counsel thyself first.
Keep good company, and you shall be of the number.
Keep no more cats than will catch mice.
Keep out of a hasty man's way for a while; out of a sullen man's all the days of your life.
Keep some till furthermore come.
Keep something for a sair fit. (Scotch.)
Keep the common road, and thou'rt safe.
Keep the feast to feast-day. (Scotch.)
Keep the staff in your ain hand.
Keep the wolf from the door.
Keep thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee.
Keep your ain fish-guts to your ain sea-maws.
Keep your feet dry, and your head hot; and for the rest live like a beast.
Keep your own counsel.
Keep your purse and your mouth close.
Keep your tongue within your teeth.
Keep yourself from the anger of a great man, from the tumult of a mob, from a man of ill fame, from a widow that has been thrice married, from a wind that comes in at a hole, and from a reconciled enemy.
Keeping from falling, is better than helping up.
Kentish longtails.
Kill the lion's whelp; thou'lt strive in vain when he's grown.
Kill two birds with one stone.
Kindle not a fire that you cannot extinguish.

Kindness canna be bought for gear.
Kindness comes o' will.
Kindness is the noblest weapon to conquer with.
Kindness lies na ay in ae side o' the house.
Kindness will creep whar it mauna gang.
Kindnesses, like grain, increase by sowing.
King Henry robbed the church and died poor.
Kings an' bears aft worry their keepers.
King's caff is worth ither men's corn.
Kings have long arms, and have many eyes and ears. (Ital.)
Kings love the treason but not the traitor.
Kissing goes by favour.
Knavery may serve for a turn, but honesty is best in the long run.
Knavery, without luck, is the worst trade in the world.
Knavery's plain face is never seen till used.
Knaves and fools divide the world.
Knaves are in such repute, that honest men are accounted fools.
Knaves imagine nothing can be done without knavery.
Knotty timber requires sharp wedges.
Know thyself. (Chilo.)
Knowledge begins a gentleman, but 'tis conversation that completes him.
Knowledge directeth practice, and practice increaseth knowledge.
Knowledge in youth is wisdom in age.
Knowledge is a second light, and hath bright eyes.
Knowledge is a treasure, but practice is the key to it.
Knowledge is eith born about.
Knowledge is no burden.
Knowledge is power.
Knowledge is silver among the poor, gold among the nobles, and a jewel among princes. (Ital.)
Knowledge, without practice, makes but half an artist.
Kyth i' your ain colours, that fowk may ken you.

L.

Lad's love's a busk of broom, hot awhile and soon done.
Laith to bed, laith out o't.

Laith to the drink, laith frae't.

Land was never lost for want of an heir.
Lang fasting gains nae meat.
Lang fasting gathers wind.
Lang lean maks hame-cauld cattle.
Lang sports turn to earnest.
Lang standing an' little offering maks a poor priest.
Lang straes are nae mots.
Lang tarrowing taks a' the thanks awa'.
Large trees give more shade than fruit.
Last in bed, best heard.
Laughter is the hiccup of a fool.
Lavishness is not generosity.
Law cannot persuade where it cannot punish.
Laws catch flies, but let hornets go free.
Lawyers' gowns are lined with the wilfulness of their clients.
Lawyers' houses are built on the heads of fools.
Lay on more wood; ashes give money.
Lay the saddle upon the right horse.
Lay things by, they may come to use.
Lay thy hand upon thy half-penny twice before thou partest with it.
Laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes him.
Lazy folks take the most pains.
Lean liberty is better than fat slavery.
Lean not on a reed.
Learning is a sceptre to some, a bauble to others.
Learning is an ornament in prosperity, a refuge in adversity, and a provision in old age. (Aristotle.)
Learning is the eye of the mind.
Learning makes a good man better, and an ill man worse.
Learning makes a man fit company for himself.
Learning refines and elevates the mind.
Learn not, and know not.
Learn to creep before you run.
Learn to say before you sing.
Learn you to an use, an' ye'll ca't custom.
Learn wisdom by the follies of others. (Ital.)
Least said is soonest mended.
Leave a jest when it pleases you best.

Leave aff as lang as the play's gude.
Leave the court ere the court leaves thee.
Leave weelcome a-hent ye.
Lend and lose; so play fools.
Lend thy horse for a long journey, thou mayest have him return with his skin.
Less of your courtesy and more of your purse.
Let a horse drink when he will, not what he will.
Let alone maks mony a loon.
Let an ill man lie in thy straw, and he looks to be thy heir.
Let another's shipwreck be your sea-mark.
Let bell'd wethers brak the snaw.
Let but the drunkard alone, and he will fall of himself.
Let bygones be bygones.
Let every man praise the bridge he goes over.
Let every pedlar carry his own burden.
Let him fry in his own grease.
Let him tak a spring on his ain fiddle.
Let him that earns the bread eat it.
Let him that is cold blow the coal.
Let him that owns the cow take her by the tail.
Let him that receives the profit repair the inn.
Let his ain wand ding him.
Let never sorrow come sae near your heart.
Let not the child sleep upon bones.
Let not the mouse-trap smell of blood.
Let not your tongue cut your throat.
Let not your tongue run away with your brains.
Let sleeping dogs lie.
Let the best horse leap the hedge first.
Let the church stand in the churchyard.
Let the cobbler stick to his last.
Let the guts be full, for it's they that carry the legs.
Let the horns go with the hide.
Let the morn come, an' the meat wi' it.
Let the plough stand to catch a mouse.
Let the smith himself wear the fetters he forged.
Let them laugh that win.
Let thy grandchild buy wax, and do not thou trouble thyself.

Let women spin, and not preach.
Let your letter stay for the post, not the post for the letter; i.e. be always before-hand with your business.
Let your purse be your master.
Let your trouble tarry till its own day comes.
Liars begin by imposing upon others, but end by deceiving themselves.
Liars have short wings.
Liars should have good memories.
Liberality is not giving largely, but wisely.
Lick your dish.
Lie for him, an' he'll swear for you.
Life and misery began together.
Life is a shuttle.
Life is half spent before we know what it is.
Life is short, yet sweet. (Euripides.)
Life lieth not in living, but in liking.
Life that is too short for the happy is too long for the miserable.
Life without a friend is death without a witness.
Life would be too smooth if it had no rubs in it.
Lifeless, faultless.
Light burdens brak nae banes.
Light cares speak, great ones are dumb. (Seneca.)
Light cheap, lither yield.
Light gains make a heavy purse.
Light-heel'd mothers make leaden-heel'd daughters.
Lightly come, lightly go.
Like author, like book.
Like blood, like good, and like age, make the happiest marriages.
Like carpenter, like chips.
Like draws to like, a scabbed horse to an auld dike.
Like father, like son.
Like lips, like lettuce.
Like master, like man.
Like priest, like people.
Like punishment and equal pain, both key and key-hole do maintain.
Like saint, like offering.
Like to die mends na the kirk-yard.

Like tree, like fruit.
Lik'd gear is ha'f bought.
Like's an ill mark.
Likely lies in the mire, when unlikely gets over.
Likeness is the mother of love.
Lilies are whitest in a blackmoor's hand.
Lip-honour costs little, yet may bring in much.
Lips, however rosy, must be fed.
Listen at the key-hole, and you'll hear news of yourself.
Listeners hear no good of themselves.
Little and often fills the purse.
Little birds may pick a dead lion.
Little boats must keep the shore, larger ships may venture more.
Little bodies have great souls.
Little children should be seen and not heard.
Little dogs start the hare, but great ones catch it.
Little goods, little care.
Little intermitting maks gude freends.
Little knows the fat sow what the lean one means.
Little may an auld nag do that mauna nicher.
Little mead, little need.
Little minds, like weak liquors, are soonest soured.
Little mischief, too much.
Little odds a-tween a feast and a fu' wame.
Little pitchers have great ears.
Little said is soon amended.
Little sticks kindle a fire, but great ones put it out.
Little strokes fell great oaks.
Little things are pretty.
Little things attract light minds.
Little winning maks a heavy purse.
Little wit in the head makes much work for the feet.
Little wit maks meikle travail.
Live, and let live.
Live not to eat, but eat to live.
Live not upon the opinion of other men.
Living upon trust is the way to pay double.
Lock the stable door before the steed is stolen.
London-bridge was made for wise men to pass over, and fools to pass under.

Long absent, soon forgotten.
Long is the arm of the needy. (Gaelic.)
Long life hath long misery.
Long looked-for comes at last.
Long-tongued wives go long with bairn.
Longer lives a good fellow than a dear year.
Look before you leap, for snakes among sweet flowers do creep.
Look high, and fall low.
Look not a gift horse in the mouth.
Look not for musk in a dog-kennel.
Look not too high, lest a chip fall in thine eye.
Look to him, gaoler; there's a frog in the stocks.
Look to the cow, and the sow, and the wheat mow, and all will be well enow.
Look to the main chance.
Lookers on see more than players.
Loquacity storms the ear, but modesty takes the heart.
Lordly vices require lordly estates.
Lose a leg rather than life.
Lose not a hog for a half-penny-worth of tar.
Lose nothing for asking.
Losers are always in the wrong. (Span.)
Lost time is never found again.
Loud in the loan was ne'er a gude milk cow.
Love, a cough, and the itch, cannot be hid.
Love and lordship like no fellowship.
Love and pride stock Bedlam.
Love asks faith, and faith asks firmness.
Love being jealous, makes a good eye look asquint.
Love can neither be bought nor sold; its only price is love.
Love comes in at the windows, and goes out at the doors.
Love delights in praise.
Love does much, but money does more.
Love heats the brain, and anger makes a poet. (Juvenal.)
Love is a sweet tyranny, because the lover endureth his torments willingly.
Love is as warm among cottagers as courtiers.
Love is blind.
Love is incompatible with fear. (Publius Syrus.)
Love is the loadstone of love.

Love is the touchstone of virtue.
Love is without prudence, and anger without counsels. (Ital.)
Love, knavery, and necessity, make men good orators.
Love laughs at locksmiths.
Love lives in cottages as well as in courts.
Love me little, and love me long.
Love me, love my dog.
Love of wit makes no man rich.
Love rules his kingdom without a sword.
Love sees no faults.
Love thy neighbour, but pull not down thy hedge.
Love will creep where it cannot go.
Lovers ever run before the clock.
Lovers live by love, as larks by leeks.
Lowly sit, richly warm.
Lucky at cards, unlucky at love.
Lucky men need no counsel.
Luve your freend, an' look to yoursel.
Lying rides on debt's back.

M.

Magistrates are to obey as well as execute laws.
Maids say nay, and take.
Maids want nothing but husbands, and when they have them, they want every thing.
Maidens should be mild and meek, swift to hear and slow to speak.
Maidens must be seen, and not heard.
Mak na meikle o' little.
Mak ae wrang step, an' down ye gae.
Make a golden bridge for a flying enemy.
Make a model before thou buildest.
Make a page of your own age.
Make a pearl on your nail.
Make a virtue of necessity.
Make a-do and have a-do.
Make haste when you are purchasing a field; but when you are to marry a wife, be slow.
Make hay while the sun shines.

Make no orts of good hay.
Make not a gauntlet of a hedge glove.
Make not balks of good ground.
Make not even the devil blacker than he is.
Make not thy friend too cheap to thee, nor thyself to thy friend.
Make not thy tail broader than thy wings.
Make not your sail too big for your ballast.
Make not your sauce till you have caught the fish.
Make the best of a bad bargain.
Make the night night, and the day day, and you will live happily. (Span.)
Make the vine poor, and it will make you rich.
Make the young one squeak, and you'll catch the old one.
Make your affairs known in the market-place, and one will call them black and another white. (Span.)
Make yourself all honey, and the flies will devour you. (Ital.)
Malice drinketh its own poison.
Malice hath a sharp sight and a strong memory.
Malice is mindful.
Malice seldom wants a mark to shoot at.
Man doth what he can, and God what he will.
Man is fire, and woman tow; the devil comes and sets them in a blaze. (Span.)
Man proposes, God disposes.
Man punishes the action, but God the intention.
Man, woman, and devil, are the three degrees of comparison.
Man's best candle is his understanding.
Man's life is filed by his foe.
Manners and money make a gentleman.
Manners makyth man.
Manners often make fortunes.
Many a good cow hath but a bad calf.
Many a good drop of broth is made in an old pot.
Many a true word is spoken in jest.
Many an honest man stands in need of help, that has not the face to beg it.
Many blame the wife for their own thriftless life. (Scotch.)
Many can bear adversity, but few contempt.
Many can pack the cards that cannot play.

Many children, and little bread, is a painful pleasure. (Span.)
Many come to bring their clothes to church rather than themselves.
Many dogs soon eat up a horse.
Many dressers put the bride's dress out of order.
Many drops of water will sink a ship.
Many estates are spent in the getting, since women, for tea, forsook spinning and knitting, and men, for their punch, forsook hewing and splitting.
Many get into a dispute well that cannot get out well.
Many go out for wool, and come home shorn. (Span.)
Many hands make light work.
Many have been ruin'd by buying good pennyworths.
Many have come to a port after a storm.
Many kinsfolk, few friends.
Many kiss the hands they wish to see cut off.
Many littles make a mickle.
Many owe their fortunes to their enviers.
Many sands will sink a ship.
Many soldiers are brave at table, who are cowards in the field. (Ital.)
Many speak much that cannot speak well.
Many talk like philosophers, and live like fools.
Many that are wits in jest, are fools in earnest.
Many there be, that buy nothing with their money but repentance.
Many things grow in the garden, that were never sowed there.
Many things lawful are not expedient.
Many ventures make a full freight.
Many who wear rapiers are afraid of goose quills.
Many without punishment, none without sin.
Many words hurt more than swords.
Many words will not fill a bushel.
Many would be cowards if they had courage enough.
Many would have been worse, if their estates had been better.
March birds are best.
March borrows of April three days, and they be ill.
March comes in with adder-heads and goes out with peacocks' tails.

March grass never did good.
March hackham, comes in like a lion, goes out like a lamb.
March in Janiveer, Janiveer in March, I fear.
March wind and May sun make clothes white and maids dun.
March winds and April showers bring forth May flowers.
Marriage and hanging go by destiny.
Marriage is honourable, but housekeeping's a shrew.
Marriage, with peace, is the world's paradise; with strife, this life's purgatory.
Marriages are made in heaven.
Marry in haste, and repent at leisure; 'tis good to marry late or never.
Marry in March and you'll rue the day.
Marry your daughters betimes, lest they marry themselves.
Marry your sons when you will, your daughters when you can.
Masters are mostly the greatest servants in the house.
Masters should be sometimes blind, and sometimes deaf.
May bees flee na at this time o' the year.
May it please God not to make our friends so happy as to forget us.
May the man be damned and never grow fat, who wears two faces under one hat.
Mean men admire wealth, great men glory.
Measure is a merry mean.
Measure is a treasure.
Measure not others' corn by your own bushel.
Measure thrice what thou buyest; and cut but once.
Meat and matins hinder no man's journey.
Meat feeds, an' claith cleeds, but manners mak a man.
Meat is much; but manners is more.
Medicines are not meant to live on.
Medlars are never good till they are rotten.
Meikle head, little wit.
Meikle spoken, part spilt.
Memory is the treasurer of the mind.
Memory tempers prosperity, mitigates adversity, controls youth, and delights old age. (Lactantius.)
Men apt to promise are apt to forget.
Men are April when they woo, December when they wed.

Men are blind i' their ain cause.
Men are more prone to revenge injuries, than to requite kindnesses.
Men are neither suddenly rich nor suddenly good. (Libanius.)
Men are not to be measured by inches.
Men fear death, as children to go in the dark.
Men goe o'er the dyke at the laighest.
Men have many faults, women only two: there's nothing good they say, and nothing good they do.
Men may bear till their backs break.
Men may blush to hear what they were not ashamed to act.
Men never think their fortune too great, nor their wit too little.
Men seek less to be instructed than applauded.
Men shut their doors against a setting sun.
Men speak of the fair, as things went with them there.
Men take less care of their conscience than their reputation.
Men that have much business must have much pardon.
Men use to worship the rising sun.
Men work but slowly that have poor wages.
Men would live exceedingly quiet if those two words, mine and thine, were taken away. (Anaxagoras.)
Men's actions are not to be judged of at first sight.
Men's vows are women's traitors.
Men's years and their faults are always more than they are willing to own.
Mends is worth misdeeds.
Mere wishes are silly fishes.
Merry is the feast-making till we come to the reckoning.
Merry meet, merry part.
Messengers shou'd neither be headed nor hang'd.
Mettle is dangerous in a blind horse.
Mice care not to play with kittens.
Mickle ado, and little help.
Might overcomes right.
Mildness governs more than anger. (Publius Syrus.)
Mills will not grind, if you give them no water.
Mint ere ye strike.
Mirth and mischief are two things.
Mirth and motion prolong life.

Mischiefs come by the pound, and go away by the ounce.
Misers put their back and their belly into their pocket.
Misery acquaints men with strange bed-fellows.
Misery must be the mother, when one beggar begets another.
Misfortunes come by forties.
Misfortunes come on wings and depart on foot.
Misfortunes make us wise.
Misfortunes seldom come alone.
Misfortunes tell us what fortune is.
Misfortunes that can't be avoided, must be sweetened.
Misfortunes when asleep, are not to be awakened.
Misreckoning is no payment.
Mocking is catching.
Moderate riches will carry you; if you have more, you must carry them.
Moderation in prosperity argues a great mind.
Modesty ruins all that bring it to court.
Money and friendship bribe justice.
Money, as well as need, makes the old wife trot.
Money begets money.
Money in purse will be always in fashion.
Money is a good servant but a bad master.
Money is a sword, that can cut even the Gordian knot.
Money is ace of trumps.
Money is often lost for want of money.
Money is the best bait to fish for man with.
Money is the god of the world.
Money is the only monarch.
Money is the sinew of love, as well as of war.
Money is welcome though it comes in a dirty clout.
Money is wise, it knows it's own way.
Money, like manure, does no good till it is spread.
Money makes not so many true friends as real enemies.
Money makes the mare to go.
Money we want, and cannot borrow; yet drink we must, to slacken sorrow.
Mony ane brings the rake, but few the shool (shovel).
Mony ane spears the gate they ken fu' weel.
Mony aunts mony eems, mony kin an' few freends.
Mony care for meal that hae baken bread enough.

Mony hounds may soon worry a hare.
Mony irons i' the fire, part maun cool.
Mony purses haud freends lang thegither.
Mony ways to kill a dog though ye dinna hang him.
More belongs to marriage than four bare legs in a bed.
More credit may be thrown down in a moment, than can be built up in an age.
More die by food than famine.
More fools, more fun. (Fr.)
More goes to the making of a fine gentleman than fine clothes.
More have repented of speech than of silence.
More know Tom fool than Tom fool knows.
More than enough is too much.
More than we use is more than we want.
More things affright than hurt us.
More words than one go to a bargain.
Most haste, worst speed.
Most of our evils, come from our vices.
Most take all.
Most things have two handles, and a wise man takes hold of the best.
Mothers' darlings make but milk-sop heroes.
Motions are not marriages.
Much better never catch a rogue than let him go again.
Much bruit, little fruit.
Much coin, much care.
Much compliance, much craft.
Much corn lies under the straw that is not seen.
Much cry and little wool.
Much is expected where much is given.
Much law, but little justice.
Much meat, much maladies.
Much water goes by the mill the miller knows not of.
Much would have more, and lost all.
Muck and money go together.
Mud chokes no eels.
Muddy springs will have muddy streams.
Muffled cats are not good mousers.
Murder will out.
Music helps not the tooth-ache.

Must is a king's word.
Muzzle na' the ox's mou'.

N.

Nae freend like a freend in need.
Nae man can baith sup an' blaw thegither.
Nae man can mak his ain hap.
Nae man can seek his marrow i' the kirn sae weel as he that has been in it himsel.
Nae man has a tack o' his life.
Nae plea is best.
Naething comes fairer to light than what has been lang hidden.
Naething enters into a close hand.
Naething is balder than a blind mare.
Naething is difficult to a weel-willed man.
Name not a rope in his house that hanged himself.
Nane but fools an' knaves lay wagers.
Nane can play the fool so weel as a wise man.
Nane sae weel but he hopes to be better.
Narrow gather'd, widely spent.
Natural folly is bad enough; but learned folly is intolerable.
Nature draws more than ten oxen.
Nature has given us two ears, two eyes, and but one tongue; to the end, we should hear and see more than we speak. (Socrates.)
Nature is beyond all teaching.
Nature must obey necessity.
Nature passes nurture.
Nature takes as much pains in the forming of a beggar as an emperor.
Nature teaches us to love our friends, but religion our enemies.
Nature, time, and patience, are the three great physicians.
Naught is never in danger.
Near is my shirt, but nearer is my skin.
Nearest the kirk the farthest frae God.
Necessity and opportunity may make a coward valiant.
Necessity dispenses with decorum.
Necessity hath no law.

Necessity is coal black.
Necessity is the mother of invention.

Necessity sharpens industry.
Neck or nothing; for the king loves no cripples.
Need makes the naked man run.
Need makes the naked queen spin.
Need makes the old wife trot.
Need maks virtue.
Need teaches things unlawful. (Seneca.)
Need will have its course.
Needs must when the devil drives.
Ne'er put a sword in a wood man's hand.
Ne'er put the plough afore the owsen.
Ne'er rode, ne'er fell.
Ne'er scad your lips in other fowk's kail.
Ne'er seek a wife till ye ken what to do wi' her.
Ne'er tell your fae when your feet sleeps.
Neglect will sooner kill an injury than revenge.
Neither beg of him who has been a beggar, nor serve him who has been a servant. (Span.)
Neither fish, nor flesh, nor good red herring.
Neither give to all nor contend with fools.
Neither good egg nor bird.
Neither great poverty, nor great riches, will hear reason.
Neither heat nor cold abides always in the sky.
Neither lead nor drive.
Neither praise nor dispraise thyself, thine actions serve the turn.
Neither speak well or ill of yourself. If well, men will not believe you; if ill, they will believe a great deal more than you say.
Never ask pardon before you are accused.

Small rain lays great dust.
Small stomachs, light heels.
Small wounds, if many, may be mortal.
Smoke, raining into the house, and a scolding wife, will make a man run out of doors.
Smooth waters run deep.
Snotty folks are sweet, but slavering folks are weet.
So got, so gone.
So live and hope as if thou would'st die immediately. (Pliny.)
So many countries, so many customs.
So many frosts in March, so many in May.
So many men, so many minds.
So many mists as in March you see, so many frosts in May will be.
So yourself be good, a fig for your grandfather.
Soft and fair goes far.
Soft fire makes sweet malt.
Soft words are hard arguments.
Soft words break no bones.
Soft words hurt not the mouth.
Soldiers are martyrs to ambition.
Soldiers in peace are like chimnies in summer.
Solitude dulls the thought, too much company dissipates it.
Some are always busy, and never do anything.
Some are atheists only in fair weather.
Some are wise, and some are otherwise.
Some go to law for the wagging of a straw.
Some good, some bad, as sheep come to the fold.
Some had rather guess at much, than take the pains to learn a little.
Some hae a hantle fauts, ye're only a ne'er-do-weel.
Some have been thought brave, because they were afraid to run away.
Some have the hap, some stick in the gap.
Some injure all they fear, and hate all they injure.
Some rain, some rest.
Some savers in a house do well.
Some that speak no ill of any, do no good to any.
Some would play a tune, before you can tune your fiddle.
Something hath some savour.

Sometimes it is better to give your apple away than eat it yourself.
Sometimes words hurt more than swords.
Soon enough, if weel enough.
Soon got, soon spent.
Soon hot, soon cold.
Soon learnt, soon forgotten.
Soon ripe, soon rotten.
Sooner said than done.
Sorrow an' ill weather come unsent for.
Sorrow and an evil life maketh soon an old wife.
Sorrow comes unsent for.
Sorrow ends not when it seemeth done.
Sorrow for a husband, is like a pain in the elbow, sharp and short.
Sorrow is always dry.
Sorrow is good for nothing but sin.
Sorrow will pay no debt.
Sour grapes, as the fox said when he could not reach them.
Sour grapes can ne'er make sweet wine.
Sow good works, and thou shalt reap gladness.
Spaniels that fawn when beaten, will never forsake their masters.

They who slander the dead are like envious dogs, that bark and bite at bones. (Zeno.)
They who would be young when they are old, must be old when they are young.
They who worship God merely for fear, would worship the devil should he appear.
They wist as well that dinna speer.
Thieves and rogues have the best luck if they do but escape hanging.
Things above thy height are to be looked at, not reached at.
Things at the worst will sometimes mend.
Things hardly attained are the longer retained.

Things ill got have ever bad success.
Things in motion sooner catch the eye than what move not.
Things not understood are admired.
Things past may be repented, but not recalled. (Livy.)
Things unreasonable are never durable. (Ital.)
Think much, speak little, and write less.
Think no labour slavery that brings in penny saverly.
Think of ease, but work on.
Think of thy deliverance, as well as of thy danger.
Think to-day and speak to-morrow.
Thinking is very far from knowing.
This and better may do, but this and worse will never do.
This day there is no trust, come to-morrow.
This rule in gardening never forget, to sow dry and set wet.
This warld winna last ay.
This world is nothing, except it tend to another.
Thorns make the greatest crackling.
Those that eat cherries with great persons, shall have their eyes squirted out with the stones.
Those that eat best and drink best, often do worst.
Those who are born on Christmas day cannot see spirits.
Thou canst not serve God, unless thy mammon serve thee.
Though a coat be ever so fine that a fool wears, yet 'tis but a fool's coat.
Though good be good, yet better is better.
Though love is blind, yet 'tis not for want of eyes.
Though malice may darken truth, it cannot put it out.
Though modesty be a virtue, bashfulness is a vice.
Though one grain fills not the sack, it helps.
Though poverty may bring sorrow, riches create inquietude,
Though the cat winks a while, yet sure she is not blind.
Though the fox runs, the chicken hath wings.
Though the heavens be glorious, yet they are not all stars.
Though the mastiff be gentle, yet bite him not by the lip.
Though the sauce be good, yet you need not forsake the meat for it.
Though the sore be healed, yet a scar may remain.
Though the sun shines leave not your cloak at home.
Though the wolf may lose his teeth, he never loses his inclinations.

Though thou hast never so many counsellors, yet do not forsake the counsel of thy own soul.
Though thy enemy seem a mouse, yet watch him like a lion.
Though you are bound to love your enemy, you are not bound to put your sword in his hand.
Though you stroke the nettle ever so kindly, yet it will sting you.
Thraw the wand while it's green.
Threatened folks live long.
Three are too many to keep a secret, and too few to be merry.
Three great evils come out of the North; a cold wind, a cunning knave, and a shrinking cloth.
Three may keep counsel, if two be away.
Three removes are as bad as a fire.
Three things only are well done in haste: flying from the plague, escaping quarrels, and catching fleas.
Three women and a goose make a market.
Thrift is good revenue.
Thrift is the philosopher's stone.
Throw not stones at thine own window.
Throw the rope in after the bucket.
Throwing your cap at a bird is not the way to catch it.
Thy child that is no child leave upon the waters, and let him swim.
Thine hand is never the worse for doing thy own work.
Thy secret is thy prisoner; if thou let it go, thou art a prisoner to it.
Tidings make either glad or sad.
Till April is dead, change not a thread.
Till St. James's day be come and gone, you may have hops or you may have none.
Time and straw make medlars ripe.
Time and thinking tame the strongest grief.
Time and tide tarry (or wait) for no man.
Time and words can never be recalled.
Time devours all things.
Time fleeth away without delay.
Time is a file that wears and makes no noise.
Time is the herald of truth. (Cicero.)
Time is the rider that breaks youth.
Time stays not the fool's leisure.

Time tint is ne'er to be found.
Time tries a'.
Time weareth out fancies.
Timely blossom, timely ripe.
Tine heart an' a's gane.
Tine thimble, tine thrift.
'Tis a bad cloth indeed that will take no colour.

'Tis liberty that every one loves.
'Tis merry in the hall when beards wag all.
'Tis money that begets money.
'Tis never too late to repent.
'Tis not a basket of hay, but a basket of flesh, which will make a lion roar.
'Tis not all saved that's put i' th' purse.
'Tis not clean linen only that makes the feast.
'Tis not every question that deserves an answer.
'Tis not for every one to catch a salmon.
'Tis not good praising a ford till a man be over.
'Tis not good to be happy too young.
'Tis not good to wake a sleeping dog or lion.
'Tis not knowing much, but what is useful, that makes a wise man.
'Tis not others' apprehensions, but your own liking, that should please you.
'Tis not prating, but working, that brings in the harvest.

'Tis not the action, but the intention, that is good or bad.
'Tis not the beard that makes the philosopher.
'Tis not the habit that makes the monk.
'Tis not the matter, but the mind.
'Tis not your posterity, but your actions, that will perpetuate your memory.
'Tis novelty that sets the people a-gaping.
'Tis one beggar's woe to see another by the door go.
'Tis perseverance that prevails.
'Tis pity fair weather should do any harm.
'Tis plenty that makes you dainty.
'Tis pride, and not nature, that craves much.
'Tis pride in fashion that puts humility out of countenance.
'Tis rare to find a fish that will not bite some time or other.
'Tis safe riding in a good haven.
'Tis self-conceit that makes opinion obstinate.
'Tis skill, not strength, that governs a ship.
'Tis sooner said than done.
'Tis the abilities of a horse that occasions his slavery.
'Tis the farmer's care that makes the field bear.
'Tis the last straw that breaks the horse's (camel's) back.
'Tis the nature of the beast.
'Tis the pace that kills.
'Tis the place that shews the man.
'Tis the riches of the mind only, that make a man rich and happy.
'Tis time, conversation, and business, that discover what a man is.
'Tis time to fear when tyrants seem to kiss.
'Tis time to yoke when the cart comes to the caples.
'Tis too late to spare when the bottom is bare (or all is spent).
'Tis wisdom sometimes to seem a fool.
Tithe, and yet be rich.
To a bad character, good doctrine avails nothing. (Ital.)
To a child, all weather is cold.

Trust not a great weight to a slender thread.
Trust not a horse's heel, nor a dog's tooth.
Trust not a new friend nor an old enemy.
Trust not the praise of a friend, nor the contempt of an enemy. (Ital.)
Trust not to a broken staff.
Trust thyself only, and another shall not betray thee.
Trusting often, makes fidelity.
Trusting too much to others is the ruin of many.
Truth an' honesty keep the crown o' the causey.
Truth and honesty have no need of loud protestations.
Truth and oil are ever above.
Truth fears no colours.
Truth finds foes, where it makes none.
Truth hath a good face, but bad clothes.
Truth hath always a fast bottom.
Truth is a means, not an end.
Truth is God's daughter.
Truth is green.

Truth is the best buckler.
Truth is the daughter of Time.
Truth makes the devil blush.
Truth may be blamed, but shall never be shamed.
Truth may languish, but can never perish. (Ital.)
Truth may sometimes come out of the devil's mouth.
Truth needs not many words; but a false tale a large preamble.
Truth never grows old.
Truth seeks no corners.
Truth should not always be revealed.
Truth is truth to the end of the reckoning.
Truth will sometimes break out unlooked for.
Truths and roses have thorns about them.
Truth's best ornament is nakedness.
Truths too fine spun are subtle fooleries.
Try the ice before you venture upon it.
Try to tame a mad horse, but knock him not at head.
Try your freend ere you need him.
Try your friend ere you trust him.
Try your friend with a falsehood, and if he keep it a secret tell him the truth. (Ital.)
Try your skill in gilt first, and then in gold.
Twa bits are better nor ane.
Twa wits are better than ane.
Twa wolves may worry ae sheep.
Twa words maun gang to that bargain.
'Twas fear that first put on arms.
'Twas surely the devil that taught women to dance, and asses to bray.
'Twere better my enemy envy me, than I him.
Two blacks make no white. (Scotch.)
Two cats and a mouse, two wives in one house, two dogs and a bone, never agree in one.
Two cunning knaves need no broker.
Two daughters and a back door are three arrant thieves.
Two dogs strive for a bone, and a third runs away with it.
Two dry sticks will kindle a green one.
Two eyes see more than one.
Two fools in a house are too many by a couple.
Two good things are better than one.

Two hands in a dish, and one in a purse.
Two heads are better than one.
Two ill meals make the third a glutton.
Two in distress makes sorrow less.
Two may keep counsel, putting one away.
Two of a trade seldom agree.
Two Sir Positives can scarce meet without a skirmish.
Two sparrows upon one ear of wheat cannot agree.
Two things a man should never be angry at; what he can help, and what he cannot help.
Two things ought to be the object of our fear, the envy of friends, and the hatred of enemies. (Bias.)
Two to one in all things against the angry man.
Two's company, three's none.
'Twould make a horse break his bridle, or a dog his halter.
'Twould make even a fly laugh.
'Twould make one scratch where it doth not itch.

Ugly women, finely dressed, are the uglier for it.
Ulcers cannot be cured that are concealed.
Unbidden guests are welcomest when they are gone.
Under the furze, is hunger and cold; under the broom, is silver and gold.
Under water, famine; under snow, bread.
Ungirt, unblessed.
Unkindness has no remedy at law.
Unknown, unkiss'd.
Unless a fool knows Latin, he is never a great fool. (Span.)
Unminded, unmoaned.
Unprofitable eloquence is like the cypress, which is great and tall, but bears no fruit. (Anon.)
Unreasonable silence is folly.
Up hill spare me, down hill forbear me; plain way, spare me not, nor let me drink when I'm hot. (A horse.)
Up the hill favour me, down the hill beware thee.
Upbraiding turns a benefit into an injury.
Use legs, and have legs.
Use makes perfectness.

Use pastime, so as not to lose time.
Use soft words and hard arguments.
Use the means, and trust to God for the blessing.
Use your wit as a buckler, not as a sword.

V.

Vain glory blossoms, but never bears.
Valour can do little without discretion.
Valour that parleys, is near yielding.
Valour would cease to be a virtue, if there were no injustice. (Agesilaus.)
Valour would fight, but discretion would run away.
Vanity will prove vexation.
Varnishing hides a crack.
Venture a small fish to catch a great one.
Venture not all in one bottom.
Venture thy opinion, but not thyself for thy opinion.
Venus smiles not in a house of tears.
Vessels large may venture more, but little boats should keep near shore.
Vice is its own punishment, and sometimes its own cure.
Vice is the most dangerous, when it puts on the garb of virtue. (Publius Syrus.)
Vice makes virtue shine.
Vice often rides triumphant in virtue's chariot.
Vice ruleth where God reigneth.
Vilify not your parish priest.
Virtue and happiness are mother and daughter.
Virtue dwells not in the tongue, but in the heart.
Virtue is a jewel of great price.
Virtue is its own reward.
Virtue is more persecuted by the wicked, than encouraged by the good.
Virtue is of noble birth, but riches take the wall of her.
Virtue is the only true nobility.
Virtue is tied to no degrees of men.
Virtue itself 'scapes not calumnious strokes.
Virtue itself turns vice, being misapplied.
Virtue maketh men on the earth famous, in their graves illustrious, in the heavens immortal. (Chilo.)

Virtue may be over-clouded for a while, but will shine at last.
Virtue, though momentarily shamed, cannot be extinguished. (Publius Syrus.)
Virtue which parleys, is near a surrender.
Virtue would not go far, if a little vanity walked not with it.
Virtues all agree, but vices fight one another.
Vows made in storms are forgotten in calms.

Wait time and place to act thy revenge, for it is never well done in a hurry. (Span.)
Wake not a sleeping lion.
Walls have ears.
Want is the mother of industry.
Want makes strife 'twixt man and wife.
Want of care admits despair.
Want o' wit is war than want o' wealth.
Wanton kittens may make sober cats.
War, hunting, and law, are as full of trouble as pleasure.
War is death's feast.
War makes thieves, and peace hangs them.
War must be waged by waking men.
War with the world, and peace with England. (Span.)
Wark bears witness wha weel does.
Warned folks may live.
Wars brings scars.
Wash your hands often, your feet seldom, and your head never.
Wasps haunt the honey-pot.
Waste makes want.
Waste not, want not.
Water run by, will not turn a mill. (Span.)
Weak men had need be witty.
We are all Adam's children, but silk makes the difference.
We are apt to believe what we wish for.
We are ay to learn as lang as we live.
We are born crying, live complaining, and die disappointed
We are bound to be honest, but not to be rich.

We are ever young enough to sin; never old enough to repent.
We are more mindful of injuries than benefits.
We are never so happy or unfortunate as we think ourselves.
We are usually the best men when in the worst health.
We can live without our friends, but not without our neighbours.
We cannot control the tongues of others, but a good life enables us to despise calumnies. (Cato.)
We carry our greatest enemies within us.
We carry our neighbour's failings in sight; we throw our own crimes over our shoulders.
We do nothing but in the presence of two great witnesses—God and our own conscience.
We easily forget our faults when nobody knows them.
We hate delay; yet it makes us wise.
We have all forgotten more than we remember.
We know not which stone the scorpion lurks under.
We lessen our wants by lessening our desires. (Laberius.)
We maun live by the living, an' no by the dead.
We may give advice, but we cannot give conduct.
We may not expect a good whelp from an ill dog.
We must fall down before a fox in season.
We must live by the quick, and not by the dead.
We must not contradict, but instruct him that contradicts us; for a madman is not cured by another running mad also. (Antisthenes.)
We must not lie down, and cry, God help us!
We must not look for a golden life in an iron age.
We never find that a fox dies in the dirt of his own ditch.
We never know the worth of water till the well is dry.
We ought either to be silent, or to speak things that are better than silence. (Pythagoras.)
We ought not to forget that our slaves are our fellow-men. (D. Cato.)
We ought to weigh well what we can only once decide. (Publius Syrus.)
We perfectly know what is good, and what is evil; and may be as certain in morals as in mathematics.
We see not what is in the wallet behind.
We seldom find out that we are flattered.

We shall all be bald an hundred years hence. (Span.)
We shall lie all alike in our graves.
We shall never have friends if we expect to find them without fault.
We should never remember the benefits we have conferred, nor forget the favours received. (Chilo.)
We should play to live, not live to play.
We should publish our joys, and conceal our griefs.
Weak things united become strong.
Weal and women cannot pan, but woe and women can.
Wealth and content do not always live together.
Wealth and honours can never cure a wounded conscience.
Wealth breeds a pleurisy, ambition a fever, liberty a vertigo, and poverty is a dead palsy. (Gaelic.)
Wealth gars wit waver.
Wealth is best known by want.
Wealth is not his who gets it, but his who enjoys it.
Wealth, like rheum, falls on the weakest parts.
Wealth makes worship.

Weel war a' that gars the plough draw.
Weels him and waes him that has a bishop in his kin.
Weigh right, and sell dear.
Weight and measure take away strife.
Welcome is the best cheer.
Welcome, mischief, if thou comest alone.
Well begun, is half done.
Well bought is half sold.
Well goes the case where wisdom counsels.
Well lathered is half shaven.
Well may he smell of fire whose gown burneth.
Well may he stumble that chooses a stony way.
Well might the cat wink when both her eyes were out

Well to judge depends on well to hear. (Ital.)
Well to work and make a fire, doth both care and skill require.
Were it not for hope, the heart would break. (Scotch.)
Were things done twice, then all were wise.
Wha can haud what will awa?
Wham God will help, none can hender.
Whar the buck's bound there he maun bleet.
Whar the pig's broken let the sherds lie.
What a day may bring, a day may take away.
What a man desires, he easily believes.
What avails it me to draw one foot out of the mire, and stick the other in?
What belongs to the public belongs to nobody.
What better is the house for a sluggard's rising early?
What can the virtues of our ancestors profit us, if we do not imitate them?
What can you expect of a hog but his bristles?
What cannot be altered must be borne, not blamed.
What cannot be cured must be endured.
What can't be done by might may be done by slight (or sleight).
What children hear at home soon flies abroad.
What Christ takes not, the exchequer carries away. (Span.)
What cometh by kind costeth nothing.
What costs little is little esteemed.
What does not float is rotten.
What Friday gets it keeps.
What God made, he never mars.
What God will, no frost can kill.
What good can it do an ass to be called a lion?
What greater crime than loss of time?
What has been, may be.
What he gets, he gets out of the fire.
What is a gentleman but his word?
What is a great estate good for, if it brings melancholy?
What is a pound of butter among a kennel of hounds?
What is a workman without his tools?
What is bought is cheaper than a gift.
What is bred in the bone won't out of the flesh.
What is done by night appears by day.

What is done cannot be undone. (Fr.)
What is every man's business is no man's business.
What is got in the county is lost in the hundred.
What is gotten over the devil's back is spent under his belly.
What is not wisdom is danger.
What is one man's meat is another man's poison.
What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.
What maintains one vice would bring up two children.
What matters it to a blind man that his father could see?
What may be done at any time will be done at no time.
What one knows, it is useful sometimes to forget. (Publius Syrus.)
What raging rashly is begun, challengeth shame before half done.
What reason and endeavour cannot bring about, time often will.
What should a cow do with a nutmeg?
What soberness conceals, drunkenness reveals.
What the eye sees not, the heart rues not.
What the fool does in the end, the wise man does in the beginning. (Span.)
What the good wife spares, the cat eats.
What the heart thinketh, the tongue speaketh.
What we cannot help is our misfortune, not our fault.
What we first lear we best ken.
What we have in us of the image of God, is the love of truth and justice. (Demosthenes.)
What you do when you are drunk, you must pay for when you are sober. (Scotch.)
What your glass tells you, will not be told by counsel.
What's a gentleman but his pleasure?
What's an army without a general?
What's an estate good for, if it cannot buy content?
What's freer than a gift?
What's good in the mouth, may be bad in the maw.
What's my turn to-day, may be thine to-morrow.
What's none of my profit shall be none of my peril.
What's the good of a sun-dial in the shade?

Who steals an old man's supper, does him no harm.
Who swims in sin, shall sink in sorrow.
Who takes an eel by the tail and a woman by her word, may say that he holds nothing. (Ital.)
Who teaches often, learns himself. (Ital.)
Who thinks often of death, does things worthy of life. (Ital.)
Who will not keep a penny, shall never have many.
Who won't when he may; when he will, shall have nay.
Who would borrow when he hath not, let him borrow when he hath.
Whoever hath a divided beard, the whole world will not prevail against him.
Whoever is the fox's servant, must bear up his tail. (Gaelic.)
Wholesome and poisonous herbs grow in the same garden.
Whom a serpent has bitten, a lizard alarms. (Span.)
Whom great men wrong, they hate.
Whom we love best, to them we can say least.
Whoso doth no evil, is apt to suspect none.
Whoso hath but a mouth, shall ne'er in England suffer drought.
Whoso lacketh a stock, his gain's not worth a chip.
Whosoever values not his own life, may be master of another's.
Wicked men cannot be friends, either among themselves or with the good. (Socrates.)

Wickedness with beauty, is the devil's hook baited.
Wide will wear, but narrow will tear.
Wife and children are hostages given to fortune.
Wi' empty hand nae man shou'd hawks allure.
Wild and stout never want a staff.
Wiles help weak fowk.
Wilful faults have no excuse, and deserve no pardon.
Wilful waste brings woeful want.
Will any, but an Irishman, hang a wooden kettle over the fire?
Will is power. (Ger.)
Will is the cause of woe.
Will will have wilt, though will woe win.
Will, without reason, is blind; and against reason, is mad.
Willing minds take up with poor exercises.
Willows are weak, yet they bind other wood.
Win at first, and lose at last.
Wind puffs up empty bladders; opinion, fools. (Socrates.)
Wine hath drowned more men than the sea.
Wine in the bottle doth not quench the thirst.
Wine is a turn-coat; first a friend, then an enemy.
Wine is the master's, but the goodness is the drawer's.
Wine neither keeps secrets, nor fulfils promises.
Wine that costs nothing is digested ere it be drank.
Wine wears no breeches; i.e. shows what a man is.
Wink at small faults.
Wink at wee fauts, your ain are meikle.
Winter is summer's heir.
Winter never rots in the sky.
Winter reveals what summer conceals.
Winter thunder makes summer wonder.
Winter weather and women's thoughts often change.
Winter's thunder and summer's flood, never boded Englishman good.
Wisdom don't always speak in Greek and Latin.
Wisdom goes not always by years.
Wisdom in a poor man is a diamond set in lead.
Wisdom is a good purchase, though we pay dear for it.
Wisdom is more to be envied than riches.
Wisdom is neither inheritance nor legacy.
Wisdom prefers an unjust peace to a just war.

Wisdom provides things necessary, not superfluous. (Solon.)
Wisdom rides upon the ruins of folly.
Wisdom sometimes walks in clouted shoes.
Wise and good is better than rich and great.
Wise fear begets care.
Wise men are caught in wiles.
Wise men are instructed by reason; men of less understanding by experience; the most ignorant by necessity; and beasts by nature. (Cicero.)
Wise men care not for what they cannot have.
Wise men change their mind, fools never.
Wise men have their mouth in their heart, fools their heart in their mouth.
Wise men in the world are like timber trees in a hedge, here and there one.
Wise men learn by other men's mistakes; fools by their own.
Wise men, though all laws were abolished, would lead the same lives. (Aristophanes.)
Wise words and great seldom agree.
Wishers and woulders are never good householders.
Wishes never can fill a sack.
Wit bought is better than wit sought.
Wit ill applied is a dangerous weapon.
Wit in a poor man's head an' moss on a mountain avails naething.
Wit is folly, unless a wise man hath the keeping of it.
Wit may be bought too dear.
Wit once bought is worth twice taught.
Wit without wisdom cuts other men's meat, and its own fingers.
With a fool and a knave, there's no conclusion.
With foxes we must play the fox.
With Latin, a horse, and money, thou wilt pass through the world. (Span.)
Withhold not thine hand from showing to the poor.
Without a friend, the world is a wilderness.
Without danger, danger cannot be surmounted. (Publius Syrus.)
Without favour, art is like a windmill without wind.
Without pains, no gains.
Wives must be had, be they good or bad.

Woe be to him whose advocate becomes his accuser.
Woe be to the wicked, and woe be to them that cleave to them.
Woe to the house where there is no chiding.
Woe to the mule that sees not her master.
Wolves may lose their teeth, but not their nature.
Women and dogs set men together by the ears.
Women and wine, game and deceit, make the wealth small, and the wants great.
Women and wine intoxicate the young and old. (Ital.)
Women commend a modest man, but like him not.
Women conceal all that they know not.
Women in mischief are wiser than men.
Women laugh when they can, and weep when they will.
Women must have their wills while they live, because they make none when they die.
Women, priests, and poultry, never have enough.
Women, wind, and fortune, are ever changing.
Women's jars breed men's wars.
Wonder is the daughter of ignorance.
Wonder lasts but nine nights in a town.
Wood half-burnt is easily kindled.
Words and feathers are tossed by the wind.
Words are but sands, 'tis money buys lands.
Words are but wind, but seeing is believing.
Words are for women; actions, for men.
Words may pass, but blows fall heavy.
Words shew the wit of a man, but actions his meaning.
Works, and not words, are the proof of love. (Span.)
Worth begets in base minds, envy; but in brave souls, emulation.
Worth without wealth is a good servant out of place.
Would you dye a raven black?
Would you draw oil out of sand?
Would you have better bread than is made of wheat?
Would you have potatoes grow by the pot-side?
Would you know secrets, search for them in grief or pleasure.
Would you know the value of money, go and borrow some.
Would you live an angel's days, be honest, just, and wise always.
Would you thatch your house with pancakes?

Wounds may heal, but not those that are made by ill words.
Wrang has nae warrant.
Wranglers are never in the wrong.
Wranglers never want words, though they may matter.
Wrens may prey where eagles dare not perch.
Wrinkled purses make wrinkled faces.
Write down the advice of him who loves you, though you like it not at present.
Write with the learned, but speak with the vulgar.
Wrong count is no payment.

Y.

Years know more than books.
Yelping curs may anger mastiffs at last.
Yielding is sometimes the best way of succeeding. (Ital.)
Ye canna mak a silk purse o' a sow's lug.
Ye canna preach out o' your ain poupit.
Ye canna see the wood for trees.
Ye come to the gait's house to thig woo.
Ye dinna ken whar a blessing may light.
Ye maun tak the will for the deed.
Ye may be heard whar ye're na' seen.
Ye may drink o' the burn but no bite o' the brae.
Ye may gang farther and fare war.
Ye may tak the head for the washing.
Ye shape my shoon by your ain shackled feet.
Ye shou'd be a king o' your word.
Ye soon weary o' weel-doing.
Ye'll beguile nane but them that lippen to you.
Ye'll ne'er die on your ain assize.
You are a fool to steal, if you can't conceal.
You cannot catch old birds with chaff.
You cannot drive a windmill with a pair of bellows.
You cannot hide an eel in a sack.
You cannot judge of a man till you know his whole story.
You cannot know wine by the barrel.
You cannot make a silk purse of a sow's ear.
You cannot make velvet of a sow's ear.

You cannot see wood for trees.
You can't eat your cake, and have it too.
You can't judge of the horse by the harness.
You can't make a horn of a pig's tail.
You can't sell the cow, and have her milk too.
You can't whistle and drink at the same time.
You carry fire in one hand, and water in the other.
You dig your grave with your teeth.
You know not what ladle your dish may come under.
You know not where a blessing may light.
You may be a wise man, though you cannot make a watch.
You may beat a horse till he be sad, and a cow till she be mad.
You may beat the de'il into your wife, but you'll never bang him out again.
You may believe anything that is good of a grateful man.
You may break a colt, but not an old horse.
You may dance on the ropes without reading Euclid.
You may gape long enough ere a bird fall into your mouth.
You may know a foolish woman by her finery.
You may know by a handful the whole sack.
You may know by a penny how a shilling spends.
You may know by the market folks how the market goes.
You may know the horse by his harness.
You may know the master by the man.
You may lose a fly to catch a trout.
You may love your neighbour, and yet not hold his stirrup.
You may pay more for your schooling than your learning is worth.
You may row your heart out, if the wind and tide set against you.
You may speak with your gold, and make other tongues dumb.
You may tell an idle fellow if you but see him at dinner.
You measure every man's honesty by your own.
You measure every one's corn by your own bushel.
You must be content sometimes with rough roads.
You must cut your coat according to your cloth.
You must drink as much after an egg as after an ox.

You must learn to creep before you go.
You must look at the horse, and not at the mare. (Span.)
You must look where it is not, as well as where it is.
You must not cut and deal too.
You must not let your mousetrap smell of cheese.
You must not pledge your own health.
You must not throw pearls before swine.
You must plough with such oxen as you have.
You must sell as markets go.
You must spoil before you spin.
You must take the fat with the lean.
You must take the will for the deed.
You need not get a golden pen to write upon dirt.
You never speak but your mouth opens.
You ought to untie that knot which you knit yourself.
You should never touch your eye with your elbow.
You will never have a friend if you must have one without fault.
You will never repent of being patient and sober.
You would be little for God if the devil were dead.
You'll dance at the end of a rope without teaching.
Young cocks love no coops.
Young ducks may be auld geese.
Young flesh and old fish are best.
Young is the goose that will not eat oats.
Young men are made wise; old men become so.
Young men may die; old men must.
Young men should be learners when old men are actors.
Young men should not marry yet, old men never.
Young men think old men fools, and old men know young men to be so.
Young men's knocks old men feel.
Young prodigal in a coach will be old beggar barefoot.
Your belly will never let your back be warm.
Your gear will near o'er-gang you.
Your looking-glass will tell you what none of your friends will.
Youth and white paper take any impression.
Youth ne'er casts for peril.
Youth will have its swing.
Yule is good on yule even.

Z.

Zeal is fit only for wise men, but is found mostly in fools
Zeal without knowledge is fire without light.
Zeal without knowledge is frenzy.
Zeal without knowledge is the sister of folly.
